Editorial Review

From Booklist

After four thematic books in which Kenney used LEGO blocks to construct castles, robots, vehicles, and a city, he shifts gears and takes on a new imaginative challenge: What can he make using just 35 LEGO bricks? It will be no surprise to fans of his Cool Creations series that Kenney dreams up an impressive assortment of robots, transformers, spacecraft, buildings, furniture, vehicles, animals, aliens, and “goofy faces.” Directions for some, but not all, of the projects appear as step-by-step, digital drawings on an adjacent page or sidebar. Photographed, the completed creations show up clearly against clean, white backgrounds with just a few black lines suggesting settings. In the introduction, Kenney displays the 35 pieces he uses in the projects. Most are more specialized than the typical LEGO blocks. Readers who can’t scrounge the same parts from their own collections can order a kit from his website or, better still, choose their own 35 pieces and challenge themselves. Review

“Kenney, a certified LEGO® professional, demonstrates 87 different LEGO® projects that kids can build.”
?School Library Journal

“Children who love cars, trucks, and LEGO blocks will find plenty to enjoy in this colorful book. . . . This visually engaging book will attract little ones interested mainly in looking at cars and trucks, as well as older kids, who may actually follow the directions and build some of the projects.” ?Booklist on Cool Cars & Trucks

“The photos will inspire young builders. . . . This is just the type of challenge that enthusiasts are likely to enjoy. . . . For LEGO enthusiasts, future engineers, and reluctant readers, this is a colorful and inspiring book.” ?School Library Journal on Cool Robots

“It’s fun (and potentially inspiring) to see what can be created with a little imagination, an inclination for building things, and an unlimited supply of interlocking plastic blocks and widgets.” ?Booklist on Cool Robots
