LEGENDS OF THE CONQUEST OF SPAIN AND THE CHRONICLE OF THE CONQUEST OF GRANADA By Washinton Irving

I have gathered together the beginning of the Moors in Spain and the end of their imperium under the last episode of the Spanish reconquest by the Catholic Kings in order to reflect the tide of History and how History teaches to see in the victor of today the loser of tomorrow. No one is free from the tide of the Future. In no other page of history is seen this fact as in the Conquest of Spain by the Moors and in the Reconquest of Spain by the Spanish People. No wonder, then, than W.Irving could not help himself in jumping from one point to the other. Much criticized by the professional historians because Irving's natural tendency to the legendary aspect of the events, it is this weakness of his which make the story absolutely brilliant. The scholars, exempting some, are of very bad writing taste, mostly dry and barren of those elements of the novelist which make us follow the pages with rest. This is the glory of Irving a fact well-known, very much a philo-sophist. Though I have read many scholar's essays on the subject, this is the first time I have read the entire clash between Goths and Moors straight to the end, and the Chronicles of the Fall of Granada without losing the thread. I hope you enjoy too.
